

RULE 87. PUBLICATION OF ORDERS AND STANDARDS

All administrative orders, standards, procedures, schedules and forms promulgated or established by the Supreme Judicial Court or any of its Justices, the Chief Justice of the Superior Court or the Chief Judge of the District Court that are generally applicable to civil actions shall be published by them and made available to all clerks of court and all members of the bar.

Advisory Committee's Note January 1, 2001

Former Rule 87 prescribed admission to the bar. It was abrogated effective November 1, 1978 with the promulgation of the Maine Bar Rules. New Rule 87, requiring publication of orders and standards promulgated or established by the courts, is taken from now-abrogated Rule 76(f). New Rule 87 makes explicit the current practice of the Supreme Judicial Court, its justices, the Chief Justice of the Superior Court, and the Chief Judge of the District Court to publish and make available to the clerks and the bar all administrative orders, standards, procedures, schedules and forms they may promulgate or establish from time to time.

Reporter's Notes December 1, 1959

This rule [former Rule 87 prescribing admission to the bar] replaces Supreme Judicial Court Rule 1.
