Labour Department's Job Centres

Labour Department's Job Centres provide free and easy-to-use employment services to help job seekers to find work and employers to recruit staff. They are fully computerised to handle a wide range of job vacancies such as managers, supervisors, clerks, accounting assistants, delivery workers, sales assistants, domestic helpers, craftpersons, etc.; and register job seekers with different educational and occupational backgrounds.

Job Centres also provide job seekers with a series of equipment to facilitate their job search. Job seekers can make use of computers with internet functions for using various functions of the Interactive Employment Service. They can make use of computers with a résumé-building software to draft their résumé, and fax their application letters and résumés to employers by using fax machine installed at Job Centres. They can also meet employment officers at Job Centres for receive employment advisory service so that they can discuss their employment needs, to obtain information on labour market and training/retraining courses, and/or to undergo career aptitude assessments as appropriate.

Job seekers, including those who are new arrivals in Hong Kong or ethnic minorities, are welcome to visit the resource corner in Job Centres to obtain comprehensive employment information. Apart from the above employment services, there are also regular employment briefings tailor made for the needs of ethnic minorities or new arrivals.

Network to Publicise Vacancies

Vacancies provided by employers are widely publicised through various channels to facilitate searching and application by job seekers.

- Job cards displayed at Job Centres;
- “Job Easy” touch-screen Vacancy Search Terminals installed at Job Centres. Using the “Job Easy”, job seekers can obtain and print the latest vacancy information with a few screen touches. Printing function is also made available in these terminals;
- Interactive Employment Service website (<https://www.jobs.gov.hk>);
- Large-scale job fairs and district-based job fairs; and
- Advertisements on newspapers.

Job Seekers' Registration Procedure

- Job seekers can register online through Interactive Employment Service website (<https://www.jobs.gov.hk>) or in person at any Job Centres using the “Easy Registration” service. First time registrants need only to spend a few minutes filling in a Registration Form after which they can use Telephone Employment Service on the following working day. This arrangement will save their time queuing up at Job Centres for job referrals.

Semi-self-help Employment Services

- Job seekers can visit any Job Centres and choose suitable openings themselves. They can then seek referral service from the staff;
- Where employers have chosen to disclose their contact means, job seekers can make job applications direct;
- Some of the vacancies are provided by private employment agencies on behalf of their employer clients. Job seekers applying for these vacancies will not be required to pay any fee.

Interactive Employment Service

- Job seekers can register online, view the latest vacancy information and do simple job matching through the Interactive Employment Service website (<https://www.jobs.gov.hk>);
- Profiles of registered job seekers, including academic qualifications, working experiences, job skills, job preferences and expected salaries will be displayed on the website. Personal data like names, ID card numbers, addresses and telephone numbers will be concealed to protect their privacy;
- Employers can make use of specially designed search engine to identify suitable candidates to fill their vacancies. Upon receipt of the lists of candidates from employers, Job Centres will make arrangements to refer shortlisted job seekers to them;
- Job seekers may also use the Interactive Employment Service mobile applications (both iOS and Android versions available) to search for suitable vacancies anytime and anywhere with their mobile devices.

Telephone Employment Service Centre

- Registered job seekers who wish to apply for posts in the private sector may first identify suitable vacancies and then call the Telephone Employment Service Hotline 2969 0888 for referral service;
- Placement officers of the Telephone Employment Service Centre may help connect job seekers to employers through conference calls, and make arrangement for job interviews.

Recruitment Centre for the Catering Industry, Recruitment Centre for the Retail Industry and Construction Industry Recruitment Centre

- Job seekers can browse the latest catering, retail and construction vacancies in the respective centres. Employers in the catering, retail and construction industries are invited from time to time to stage recruitment activities and to conduct on-the-spot interviews with job seekers;
- Job seekers may visit the Interactive Employment Service website (<https://www.jobs.gov.hk>) for the information on the latest recruitment activities of the centres.

Please contact our staff if you have any questions when applying for a job posted through our employment services.
